MEN INDOORSE SECOND ISSUE

Many Names Added to List to Work for a Greater Grady Hospital

The Atlanta real estate board and the Atlanta Hotel Men's association have endorsed the proposed $150,000 bond issue for Grady hospital, which will be passed upon by the voters of the city on May 2.

The list of organizations which have now taken this action includes the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Federation of Trades, the Knights of Columbus, the Fulton County Medical society, the two above-mentioned, and many others.

The bond issue is receiving the endorsement of individuals and of organizations so fast, that it is difficult to be presented by speakers who know the subject.

The opposition to the bonds, about which there has been so much talk, is becoming to be extremely hard to locate, except for an individual here and there.

The women are doing a remarkable work for the bonds. They are going in large delegations every day to inspect the hospital, and they come away with renewed enthusiasm and determination that the bonds shall be authorized.

The inadequate nurses' quarters at the hospital are especially impressive to the women. These quarters are so small, so cramped, so uncomfortable, that the hospital finds it well-nigh impossible to get nurses. The proportion of nurses to patients is the smallest of any hospital in the city, and it is an almost daily occurrence for several nurses to be unable to work on account of the exhaustion and illness directly attributable to the condition of their dormitory.

The executive committee of the Pan-Hellenic of Atlanta, a young women's organization composed of members of college societies, has called a special meeting at 10 o'clock Monday afternoon in the University club for the purpose of organizing the members in support of the bond issue.

Why It Suits Particular People.
Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is prompt and effective for all cases of croup, hoarseness, bronchitis, or for any condition where the membranes of the throat and bronchial tubes are inflamed and raw. Thomas Verano, Hancock, Mich., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar has stopped my cough with no bad after effect. It brings out the sputa, and is a pure, reliable medicine. That's why it suits particular people."

ROBERT J. PERRYMAN

TO BE BURIED SUNDAY
Atlanta Business Man, Who Died Friday, to Be Interred in Alabama

Robert Jephtha Perryman, well known and successful Atlanta business man, died Friday afternoon at the home of his mother in Heflin, Ala. He was 59 years of age. He had been in poor health for over a year and of late had begun to fail rapidly.

Mr. Perryman had been a citizen of Atlanta for thirty years and at the time of his death was vice president of the Brown-Perryman-Green Hat Company, many of this city and also a member of the firm of Perryman Bros., of Heflin. He was one of the best known men in the wholesale hat business in the entire south and enjoyed a wide popularity in the business and social world alike. He was also known for his interest in the education of children who could not afford school without outside assistance. He was ever ready to help and it was through his generosity that many little ones were able to attend school.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kitchens Perryman, of Heflin; three brothers, Frank Perryman, of Atlanta, and Dave and Gus Perryman, of Little, of four sisters, Mrs. James R. Little, of Atlanta; Mrs. John Morahan, of Heflin; Miss Hattie Perryman, of Atlanta, and Miss Ella Perryman, of Heflin.

Mr. Perryman was a Mason and a Shriner. The funeral at his mother's home in Heflin Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be conducted with Masonic honors. Friends of Mr. Perryman who wish to attend the services may leave Atlanta over the Southern railway at 4 and 11:55 o'clock a. m.

MRS. MARY R. LOGAN

IS DEAD AT AGE OF 82
For Many Years She Has Been One of Atlanta's Most Beloved Women

Mrs. Mary Redding Logan, one of Atlanta's best beloved women and a pioneer of the city, passed away at her home, 428 Peachtree street, Friday afternoon. She was eighty-two years of age.

Mrs. Logan was the daughter of Colonel A. W. Redding, of Harris county, who was one of the ablest men in the state and a leader in his section. She married James L. Logan, who, after the war, became a successful business man in Atlanta. She was prominent socially and belonged to the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Pioneer society. For forty years she had been a member of the First Methodist church.

She is survived by two sons, Frank Logan and James L. Redding, of Griffin, and one sister, Mrs. Ella Sapp, of Texas. The funeral services will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the First Methodist church, Dr. R. M. DuBois, assisted by Dr. A. M. Hush, left officiating.

FROM ACT I, "DAMAGED GOODS"

Doctor: "You can discuss in the newspapers, is it?"
The Doctor: "Why not?"
The Doctor: "Facts are awful things, but when thousands of men are diseased every day simply because they don't know, are we to throw all frequent applause, 'Damaged Goods' teaches a lesson that no 'reform play' could hope ever to teach."

Leaving aside the dramatic side of "Damaged Goods"—which makes it a play as gripping as the best—letting aside the capability of the company that presented it at the Atlanta theater last night—what can be said about the play, leaving aside the fact that the audience stamped its unqualified approval?

One of the resolutions expressed the hope that the United States should solve the Mexican problem without further war, and the other urged the observance of May 15 as peace day.

"Our Little Lost Sister," avowedly to play to open the eyes of the world to the horrors of vice, made a miserable fiasco in Atlanta this winter and utterly failed to accomplish its alleged purpose.

"Damaged Goods" accomplishes its purpose, more skillfully acted, but most of all because it states human nature in its most valuable terms.

Well, the audience Friday approved, enthusiastically approved, if unanimous applause means approval. The fearless array of facts that an Atlanta audience ever faced, was hurled from stage, in the doctor's words, in the object lessons of his patients and the stories, in the plot of the play itself.

The audience knew what it was going to get—it was a wise audience for the most part—and while it was rather stunned in spots, it swallowed the dose, in general, without complaint.

It is open to argument whether it is absolutely essential to the purpose of the play to have an unfortunate woman explain her methods to the house in the last act. It makes the play stronger, it drives the lesson further home.

"Damaged Goods" without this undoubtedly accomplishes its purpose—telling the world what the world ought to know.

As for the company that plays "Damaged Goods" here again Saturday matinee and night, it is a first party of the play to have an unfortunate woman explain her methods to the house in the last act. It makes the play stronger, it drives the lesson further home.

SOCIETY TALKS PEACE AS NATION NEARS WAR

Prof. Call Delivers Lecture, and Society Adopts Two Resolutions

In the midst of war we are in peace, and between war extras Friday afternoon, the Georgia Peace society met and adopted two resolutions. They followed the lecture by Prof. Arthur D. Call at the Piedmont hotel.

Prof. Call said that ten years ago Atlanta would have been with excitement over the Mexican situation, whereas now it is viewed calmly. Dr. J. H. Hall was chosen delegate to represent the Georgia association at the national convention. Dr. John E. White introduced Prof. Call.

One of the resolutions expressed the hope that the United States should solve the Mexican problem without further war, and the other urged the observance of May 15 as peace day.

CALL OF WAR STRONGER THAN LOVE OF FIANCEE

W. E. Buckalew, Deserter From Marine Corps, Leaves Sweetheart to Join Ship

On March 3, W. E. Buckalew, deserter from the United States marine corps, leaving his ship, the gunboat Itasca, at New Orleans. He had made up his mind to come back to his mother and sweetheart, who lived about nine miles from Jackson, Ga.

And now he is on his way back to join the marine corps at Vera Cruz. The call of battle was too strong and though he had deserted for his fiancée he has left her again to serve his country.

When he decided to go back and fight Mexicans he went to Jackson, Ga., and surrendered to the sheriff of Henry county, admitting that he was a deserter from Uncle Sam's navy. He was brought to Atlanta and turned over to the local marine recruiting station.

The young deserter will be sent from here to Fort Royal and thence to his ship at Vera Cruz.

NATIONAL GUARD TO BE MOBILIZED AT MACON

Atlanta to Be Temporary Headquarters in Case Georgia Troops Are Called Out

Adjutant General J. Van Hout Nash has selected Atlanta as the temporary and Macon as the permanent site for the mobilization camps for troops destined for service in Mexico.

Acting under instructions from the war department in Washington, General Nash suggested either Fort McPherson or Crump's park, in Macon. Later it was learned that the quarters of the Seventeenth infantry were not available and Macon was immediately chosen for the permanent camp.

Fort McPherson, however, will be used for those troops in Atlanta and the immediate vicinity and they will be kept there pending transportation to Macon.

SHOP WITH SALLY ANN

Sally Ann, a typical young woman of today, is in Atlanta shopping for grand opera. She arrived late last night and is domiciled at a local hotel. On the society page of tomorrow's Journal Sally Ann will tell you just how and where she spent her day and money, of a host of wonderful things she found in the shops especially tempting to the opera patron, and of her final selection of a complete wardrobe for the next morning's performance at the auditorium. Startling with an appreciation of her apartment at one of Atlanta's best hotels, an appetizing account of a dainty breakfast, a fast ride of an hour, followed by visits to the department stores, the florist, the hair-dresser, the dry cleaner, the shoe shop, the jeweler, Ann will in the entire not only give you practical hints for last-minute shopping for opera, but will perhaps open your eyes to what Atlanta merchants are offering in the way of fashions and smart styles. Remember—on the society page tomorrow!

BY DR. MARION McH. HULL.

winner that repenteth—Luke 15:10.

In spite of the severe test which Jesus put upon discipleship, great crowds followed Him; crowds of publicans and sinners. Possibly it was on account of the graciousness of the invitation which He gave them in the parable of the great supper. The popularity of Jesus aroused the prejudice of the Pharisees. Their anson of man has come to seek and to save that which was lost. The good shepherd layeth down his life for the Just as there was rejoicing in that heaven over the one sheep that was lost over the nine sheep that was so in heaven there is great rejoicing the one sinner that repenteth more over the ninety and nine just who need no repentance.

There was a bitter pill for the

that the crowd was composed of publicans and sinners. They would not countenance such breaking of caste lines as any such recognition of these outcasts would bring. Their criticism of Him has been the highest compliment paid Him. "This man receiveth sinners to eat and drink with him."

The Pharisees were self-righteous. They had no sense of need. Their's was a holier-than-thou attitude always. They repelled the publicans and sinners which Jesus received. The severest criticism that was made of Him, therefore, be-

He answered their criticism by a three-fold parable. The story of the lost sheep, the lost coin and the lost boy. We study but the first two portions of it today; the other portion next week. But let us remark before we pass from the consideration of it as a whole, that there is a gradual increase in value. The coin was more valuable than the sheep, and the son than the coin. The sheep was only one in 100, the coin one in 10, and the boy one in two. The three-fold parable teaches this as Christ's answer, everything she owned to him. She moved every piece of furniture; she looked into all the corners with a candle; she turned every rug, until finally she found him, and then her joy was so great it called in the neighbors to share her, because she had found the one

Let us notice the first two parts of the parable now. A man had 100 sheep. One of them thoughtlessly strayed away. He did not intend to, but in some way got separated from the shepherd and the other sheep and was lost. There is nothing so helpless as a lost sheep. He has no means of defense; has no sense of locality. He is utterly at the mercy of his enemies. He is hopelessly lost. The careless shepherd would let it go, as he goes left; why should he worry over the one? It is just a sheep. But the good shepherd leaves the ninety-and-nine safe in the fold, and goes out to seek until he finds it. No sacrifice is too great so long as he finds the sheep, and then when he has found it, he puts it on his own shoulders and takes it, not to the fold, but to his own home. Calla joy will never be complete until we have found your place among the jewels of the King.

God gave His love without in order that He might win you; there been no other person in the wide world who needed Him but love is so great to you that less in his neighbors to rejoice with him, because he had found the sheep which was lost.

So, said Jesus, is the attitude of the true shepherd. These publicans and sinners were lost, many of them through carelessness. They were as helpless and have left heaven, would have all that He did, would have suffered tortures and the shameful death of the cross and the darkness of the grave in order that He might win you. Will you spurn His love? Will you not accept the proffered gift of salvation as hopelessly lost as the one sheep. Love could not rest satisfied until they had been found. God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life. The
